

Sunlight and artificial light. The day and the night.
Negative architecture as a framework for a landscape and a marine culture, and another positive when what is left at night is the world built by man.